

Deep in the forest, the students began arriving at school. As they waited for the bell to ring, some students were listening to their headphones, while others were standing around making fun of Wolfie for picking his nose again. Yuck!

Looking disheveled and stunned at what had just happened, Wolfie and Mr. Centaur got up, brushed themselves off, and slowly limped to class. When they arrived in class, the students were sitting on their desks having a bubblegum-blowing contest.

As always, Gretta kept interrupting and asking questions that didn't make any sense. She obviously wasn't listening! Because of her, Mr. Centaur had to keep repeating himself, and the students ended up missing recess.

