

Haruka heads towards the subway. The kite is flying above her. Before reaching the subway, she passes in front of a SHINTOIST TEMPLE, the traditional religion of Japan. The religion coexists with BUDDHISM, the other majority religion of the country.

When she reaches the entrance to the subway, she goes inside. As she goes down the steps, she places the kite inside her backpack and takes out the MANGA COMIC that she is reading. The station is full of people. But Haruka is so absorbed in her reading that she doesn't notice the crowd.

Haruka continues walking with the koto melody in her head. She stops at the red traffic light and while she waits for it to turn green, she observes how the kite she is holding moves about. When she lowers her gaze, she sees two GEISHAS pass in front of her.

“How pretty they are!”

She follows them with her gaze until she loses sight of them.