

The night drums

I don't like it when bedtime arrives, because everything is so dark. Grandmother knows this and she tells me a secret. "If you close your eyes and listen carefully, you will hear a tam-tam that beats inside you, as if a little man was beating a drum. Listen to your heart. It will help you to sleep."

Nature speaks to us

Are you afraid of a storm? It scares me, but my sister explained that it's like us and it speaks, that is if you listen to it, of course. First the wind howls for the rain to approach. Then the drops patter against the windowpanes saying: "We're here now." Then the lightning strikes and immediately afterwards, the thunder replies strongly.

The hidden sound

Have you ever looked for a hidden sound? There is always one that hides more than the others. To find it, you have to imagine that you move aside the other sounds, as if they were curtains preventing you from seeing the light: The traffic in the street, the television, the neighbor's flute, until... "Scratch-scratch." It's the cat scratching. Now I've found it!
